

Landon, Sure of Election Appeals for Support of Missouri at St. Louis

Will Speak in Municipal Auditorium Tonight; "When I am President" Brings West Virginia Ovation; Appears in Kentucky.

CHARTER OF HOME

Calls Constitution Charter of Our Liberties, Our Homes; Speaks of Inflation Threat.

Aboard Landon Special, enroute to St. Louis, Oct. 31 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon drafted the final summation of his presidential campaign tour against the New Deal today for Halloween delivery in St. Louis, his eyes cast on Missouri's 15 electoral votes.

Smilingly reiterating confidence of election, the Republican nominee appealed for support of "real Democrats" as he campaigned through West Virginia, enroute to Missouri's biggest city to meet his wife, whom he has not seen since his departure two weeks ago upon his transcontinental campaign drive.

The Kansas governor reserved the morning hours for visiting with Mrs. Landon, leaving the afternoon for conferences with party leaders before delivering his address in the Municipal Auditorium. The speech will be broadcast nationally, 10:30 to 11 p. m., (Eastern Standard Time).

Landon capped his West Virginia thrust with a station platform speech at Huntington before a cheering throng estimated at 15,000 by Police Lieut. M. M. Johnson, after a broadcast at Charlestown's Middleburg Auditorium, in which he asserted "household budgets" must pay for New Deal "waste and extravagance."

Issues of the Home.

Discussing "issues as they relate to the home," the nominee addressed the "thousands of men and women who in ordinary years take no active part in political contests."

He called the constitution "the charter of our liberties—the charter that keeps our homes," and told his hearers New Deal "misuse of public funds" threatened inflation through disregard of "the old-fashioned principle of making both ends meet."

In some foreign countries, he said, "homes are no longer protected by the law against invasion by the agents of an all-powerful government."

"We must never forget that the loss of liberty in these countries followed depression; that the trends in government which preceded this loss of liberty were similar in many respects to the trends in government which we see in America today."

As he began "When I am President," the crowd roared applause. When he asked "Did it (the present administration) tell you frankly in advance what you were getting?" the crowd responded "No."

"And do you feel you got your money's worth?" "No," shouted the audience.

"It is (the New Deal) telling you now what it proposes to offer you if it should be re-elected?"

After a chorus of "No," a voice shouted "We wouldn't believe it if it did," causing a roar of laughter.

A crowd that awaited the governor's train at Mayville, Ky., an operating stop, was rewarded when Landon appeared on the rear platform shortly before 11 p. m., and shook hands with as many persons as he could reach.

At Huntington, Landon reiterated the choice at the polls next Tuesday is between those desiring "an all-powerful chief executive and a subservient Supreme Court" and those who "propose to go forward along the American way of life."

After his speech in St. Louis tonight, Governor and Mrs. Landon planned to go directly to the Sunflower Special for the overnight journey to Topeka, where he will rest in his case with the voters in a brief election-day broadcast Monday night.

Fair St. Reformed
Church Auditorium
Being Redecorated

Redecoration of the main auditorium of the Fair Street Reformed Church is being undertaken by the congregation of the church. For the past two weeks the old firm of J. and R. Lamb of New York City has had a force of expert mechanics at work erecting scaffolding and getting ready for the complete redecoration of the auditorium. The firm which has the work in charge is one of the oldest firms engaged in ecclesiastical decorating and has been engaged in that type of work for the past 80 years.

The entire interior of the main auditorium will be decorated and at the same time the work of restoring the old windows will be done. In this renovation of the church, which is the first in many years and which was very badly needed, it is planned at the same time to install new electric light fixtures to replace the present antiquated ones which have hung in the church so many years.

Inquiry today of the Rev. Dr. F. B. Seelye, pastor of the church, as to the scheme of interior decorating to be carried out, he stated that at present the particular color scheme had not been determined upon and that was being left to Mr. Lamb, who was an expert in that line. For suggestions as to what would be the better type, Mr. Lamb was in Kingston Friday in conference with Dr. Seelye and with members of the church and some whom which will blend well with the particular type of building will be worked out.

During the redecoration of the church auditorium Dr. Seelye will hold church services in the Sunday school rooms.

Japanese Hen Sets Egg
Laying Record, Experts
Will Not Recognize It

Tokyo, Oct. 31 (AP).—Farmer Fujikura's hen did it today.

With a deprecating cockle, as though to say, "Well, that's nothing—really nothing," the prolific leghorn dropped her 261st egg since November 1, 1935, to set a new world's record for solo "mass production."

The new world's champion still had 12 hours to notch the mark one higher and she retired to the barn with a strut fairly exuding confidence.

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP).—Federal poultry experts refused today to concede the world championship egg laying title to Japan.

A news dispatch from Tokyo reported that farmer Kichi Fujikura's leghorn hen had set a new world record by laying 261 eggs in a year.

"That's a mighty fine claim," said Bertley Winton, poultry expert at the Agriculture Department, "but the farmer's claims are unofficial we don't recognize them."

Winton then produced records which showed that a white leghorn hen in this country had been credited with 260 eggs in one year in an official egg-laying contest at Corvallis, Ore., in 1934-35.

Rome, Oct. 31 (AP).—Italy intends to double its naval personnel, authoritative sources said today, preparing to meet any threat from England in the Mediterranean.

Naval sources also disclosed plans for development and expansion of the Italian war fleet.

Doubling of the naval personnel, just increased from 50,000 to 60,000 men, would raise it to at least 100,000.

The purpose of the move, it was said, was to match Britain's naval rearmament in order to maintain the ratio of Italian naval strength to the British fleet.

Following Mussolini's recent announcement to the cabinet that "several scores of warships are now under construction," naval sources said:

Many light warships, from submarines to cruisers, are being added to the two 35,000-ton battleships Littorio and Vittorio Veneto now under construction. Ten new submarines, of 600 tons each, are now completed and, of short cruising radius, are destined to remain in the Mediterranean.

The navy will complete its system of bases. A strong base has just been finished on the island of Elba, pointing at France and the northern Mediterranean.

One of Strongest Bases.

New works are to be constructed at Taranto, in the arch of the Italian boot, to make that base one of the strongest in the Mediterranean. It is now Italy's principal base, and is strategically located.

Although Italy's land forces, which reached their peak of 1,200,000 men at the end of the Italo-Abyssinian war, are being demobilized, the naval forces have been kept at full efficiency.

A naval source stated Italy's position with regard to England in the Mediterranean as follows:

"In 1935, when the British horse fleet steamed into the Mediterranean, Italy, preparing to meet any eventuality, placed its fleet at its highest efficiency in history, ably supported by the air force."

"If the home fleet was a bluff, the bluff was called. Britain stopped and looked. She saw that the Italian fleet was in a certain inferior ratio of strength to her own fleet, but was capable of inflicting tremendous damage, with the help of Italy's superior air fleet."

Would Lose Position.

"So large a portion of the British fleet might be destroyed that Britain would cease to be in the first line of naval strength."

"Britain did not put the bluff, if bluff it was, into effect, and Italy won out in Abyssinia."

"Now Britain is arming frenziedly. She saw that her ratio of superior strength was not sufficient, and she wants to increase it."

"But Italy saw that by having a fleet at a certain ratio of strength with regard to the British fleet she could keep the British from striking."

"Now she intends to maintain that ratio. As the British build Italy will build, the ratio will remain the same (Italy does not have to construct as much as England to maintain the ratio) and the British fleet in the Mediterranean will be stymied."

NEW YORK CITY EATING PLACES RACKET VICTIMS

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—One hundred and ten Manhattan restaurants, and cafeterias, including such familiar midtown spots as Jack Dempsey's, Lindy's, and the Hollywood, were named today as victims of a racket which prosecutors blamed for extorting $2,000,000 annually.

"Shakedown" ranging from $250 to $17,000 allegedly extorted from the six Steuben taverns were listed in a second indictment returned against the Metropolitan Restaurant and Cafeteria Association and 13 individuals.

The 41 specific extortions charged against the ring included $8,200 from Lindy's restaurant, $750 from the Hollywood, and $235 from Jack Dempsey's.

Three chains, the Tip Toe Inn, Sherman Cafeteria and the C. and L. Sandwich Shops, were alleged to have paid $10,500 each for immunity from picketings, stench bombings and other terrorist tactics which, Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey charged, accompanied refusal to join the association.

In all, the indictment charged extortions totalling $1,173,585 and attempted extortion of an additional $13,500. Dewey said these amounts were merely "initiation" fees and that weekly "membership" dues also were paid.

FEDERATION SURVEY
WARNS ON BUYING POWER

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP).—While predicting a continued business upswing through next spring, the American Federation of Labor warned today against "an eventual shortage of buying power."

The Federation's monthly business survey contended workers are not getting their share of retarding prosperity because "no significant gain" in hourly earnings has accompanied lengthening hours of work.

"Because industry is now rapidly expanding the shortage is not noticed," the survey said. "It will be felt when a new peak is reached and buying power fails to sustain further production."

PRIZE IS $500,000

Stork Synopsis.

Charles Vance Millar, a 72-year-old Toronto lawyer, died Oct. 31, 1926.

He left a will bequeathing the bulk of his fortune to the Toronto mother who bore the greatest number of children in the ten years following his death.

The ten years expires today—actually at 4:30 p. m., but legally presumably, at midnight.

Any birth counts, under the will—babies born prematurely, born dead or born out of wedlock.

The death rate among progeny of "marathon mothers" has been virtually double that of the city's normal infant death rate.

The amount of the "grand prize"—to be divided equally in case of a tie—is approximately $500,000.

"Damn Dead Men!"

By DALE HARRISON

Toronto, Oct. 31 (AP).—Charles Vance Millar, whose pet phrase as a lawyer was "damn dead men!"

They're always coming back to plague us!" Was one of his own dead men today.

Gone these ten years, the irascible old bachelor who hated women returned today through the medium of "Stork Derby."

He returned to a melange of mothers, lawsuits, contracts, and re-creations, to the last minute frantic flapping of stork wings; and to the sobering rumble of a white hearse.

Babies—dozens of them; sheriffs with subpoenas; mothers with lawyers and managers—and with social workers carrying relief baskets at the back door; solemn executors, their dignity a bit askew at finding themselves mixed up in an "exhibition" so far removed from their frock-coated routine; mothers praying that the babies they expect may be born in time to count in the fantastic race for births—that was the picture as the contest staggered to its close.

No one had the slightest idea who was ahead, so confusing were the claims, so contradictory the records.

Six In The

Six women appeared to be in a tie as the curfew hour neared. All claimed motherhood of nine children, properly certified.

These women are Mrs. Lily Kenny, Mrs. John Nagle, Mrs. Annie Smith, Mrs. Pauline Clarke, Mrs. Arthur Timleck and Mrs. Isobel MacLean.

In addition, Mrs. Peter Roman, pretty 28-year-old wife of a Greek chef and a mother of eight, was confident she would bear another child, before the contest closed—and was even counting on twins.

Counted out by the other mothers but herself strongly insisting she still was among the leaders was Mrs. Grace Bagnato, claiming nine births but with only seven registered. Mrs. Bagnato, too, thought she would be in the delivery room before curfew tonight.

Thirteen mothers, including the six leaders, Mrs. Bagnato and others with lesser numerical offspring, received subpoenas late yesterday to appear next Friday at a hearing on the validity of the "stork derby" clause.

The hearing is to bring out not only the claims of the mothers but also those of the "next of kin" of Millar who have sued to have the clause declared void.

It is so that Charles Vance Millar's joke on motherhood came to its climax. It is so that Millar's "damned" dead men came back today "to plague us"—came back this Halloween anniversary of his death, like a Halloween bogoblin, to have one last laugh.

Hoover Calls for Roosevelt Answer

Denver, Oct. 31 (AP).—Former President Hoover, calling for the New Deal to "lay its cards on the table," headed for California today where he may make a "last minute" campaign speech Monday night.

In an address before a Republican meeting which filed the 3,600 seats of the municipal auditorium last night, Hoover joined in the challenge Governor Alf M. Landon voiced in New York the night before—that President Roosevelt answer their questions respecting his plans if re-elected.

"Why does not the New Deal really lay its cards on the table?" the former President asked. He demanded of the President "reply in plain words" to the questions:

"Does he (Roosevelt) propose to revise the nine articles which the Supreme Court has rejected? Has he abandoned his implied determination to change the constitution? Does he intend to stall the court itself? Will he discharge these associates of his who daily preached the 'new order' but whom he does not allow to appear on this campaign?"

At Albany This Evening

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith returned today to the scene of his political triumph as legislator and governor to deliver a final campaign blast against the New Deal and his former friend and political ally, President Roosevelt.

The former governor and one-time Democratic presidential nominee, now supporting the candidacy of Alfred M. Landon, Republican candidate for president, speaks tonight at Harmanus Bleeker Hall. The hall adjoins the State Armory where Smith made one of his last public appearances with Roosevelt at the Democratic State Convention in 1932.

Smith is appearing under the auspices of the Independent Coalition of American Women.

A reception committee of the organization was appointed to meet him at the train today and escort him later from his hotel to the hall. The route led past the State Capitol where the former governor ruled as chief executive of the state for eight years.

London, Oct. 31 (AP).—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, leaving rain-drenched London after a week in which she obtained a divorce from her husband, was reported reliably to be week-ending in the country today, with a visit to royal Fort Belvedere believed likely. Fort Belvedere is King Edward's country residence.

A chicken dinner will be served by the Charity Working Club election night at Kingston Point, from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock, after which there will be dancing.

San Francisco, Oct. 31 (AP).—A spreading maritime strike held nearly 150 vessels in coast ports today, paralyzed cargo movements, and threatened to add more than 20,000 new workers to the idle list headed by 37,000 marine employees.

Ships heading for ports from San Diego to Seattle faced steep on arrival. Atlantic and gulf marine commerce faced a spread of the walkout to those areas.

San Francisco officials, mindful of the bloody 82-day strike in 1934, took "emergency" steps to meet the situation, precipitated Thursday night by a general walkout of marine union labor.

Federal officials here and in Washington strove to bring accord with no immediate indication of success. The strike had repercussions in far-away Alaska and Hawaii. It disrupted plans of hundreds of seagoing passengers and caused revision of mail movements.

Last midnight 57 vessels were strike-bound here. Another 57 were held in North Pacific ports, including Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., and Portland, Ore. Twenty-two were tied up at San Pedro and San Diego and six in Hawaii.

San Francisco Harassed

San Francisco also was harassed by a strike of 1,000 warehousemen in grocery storage plants, demanding higher wages and a new working agreement.

In Seattle, the West Coast Lumbermen's Association estimated 26,000 lumber workers would be forced out of work if the marine strike lasted a week.

Weatherman Contined
Day of Lone Daredevil
Flying Ocean Is Ended

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The man who charted the course of every successful eastbound trans-Atlantic airplane flight since Charles A. Lindbergh's, rolled up his maps today and wrote this bold inscription of the back:

"Capt. James Q. Moillon: Last of the solo heroes of the ocean airways."

For Dr. James H. Kimball, New York's weatherman, is convinced the day of the lone daredevil has ended.

There was no more glory to lure them, he said. Moillon captured the last of it.

On his record-breaking lunch-to-breakfast hop from Newfoundland to London the English captain did the one thing no one else dared before: Flew deliberately into threatening ocean weather.

Dr. Kimball warned Moillon before he took off that sheet and snow would batter him, and that he would form on his ship's wings. That happened, but the flier won.

The flight closed the busiest season in trans-Atlantic flying history. Ten crossings were made before Moillon's trip, and no lives were lost. But a flight made after this would be foolhardy, Dr. Kimball said.

Of 165 Victims, Many Were Small

Square; Many Injured.

Madrid, Oct. 31 (AP).—The shriek of air raid sirens sent terrified Madrid street crowds rushing pell mell for shelter early this afternoon as deaths from yesterday's insurgent air raid passed the 165 mark. However, no planes appeared immediately.

The warning was sounded at 1 p. m.

Two hours later, as tragic queues wound away from the doors of morgues and hospitals housing the dying and dead from Friday's bombardment, the sirens wailed again.

The crowds, shouting in terror, ran for subway exits, the doors of tall buildings, or any place which offered shelter.

However, nothing happened and it was learned later that three insurgent planes had merely skirted the city from the west, attempting no attack and apparently heading for Barajas airport.

Bald Detectives Alert

It was believed the first alarm was caused by sensitive aircraft detectors catching the hum of motors from planes near Torrejon, to the south, where government and insurgent armies were locked in a grim conflict.

Anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on the two planes which circled the city at 3 p. m., but they were not hit.

Officials estimated the dead in the Madrid area might reach 200.

(The sound of the sirens' warning of the second raid cut short an Associated Press telephone conversation between Madrid and London. The shrieks could be heard plainly in the London bureau of The Associated Press before the communication was broken. Later it was reestablished.)

The deaths of scores of persons, wounded in yesterday afternoon's sudden bombardment of the capital and its environs, swelled the toll of Friday's brief minutes of terror.

Official reports, following a check of Madrid wards, disclosed 125 dead, including 80 women and 20 children, and 360 wounded.

Semi-official reports from suburban Getafe indicated 42 others had perished, with more than 150 injured.

Only 16 of those killed in the capital itself were identified.

The authorities hastened to quiet panicky reports with the assurance that insurgent airmen and not house-dynamite-throwers, were responsible for yesterday's havoc.

Madrid, Oct. 31 (AP).—Authorities of bomb-ripped Madrid hastened today to quiet panicky reports with an assurance that insurgent airmen, not house-dynamite throwers, brought death and havoc to the Capital Friday afternoon.

A government statement that "an inhuman and unexpected bombardment" killed at least 35 persons and wounded twice as many inspired a measure of confidence, after many persons had declared bombs had been thrown from house-tops and that a load of dynamite had exploded during the height of the terror.

The latter contention apparently was based on the fact that a column of smoke shot up over Puencarral street, spreading a pall over the city.

The rumors also spread from the fact that no one heard the drone of the Fascist "blackbirds of death" before the bombs fell.

The aerial massacre, claiming mostly women and children as victims, stunned the city with its sudden, unheralded descent.

No Alarm Given

No siren alarms were sounded. No drumming hum warned of the arrival of the high-flying bombers.

Mothers idly basking in the sun, watching their children play in a public park in the Glorieta del Bilbao district, suddenly saw them ripped by bursting shrapnel.

Eleven children were mowed down while playing in the Plaza Progreso, and the whining fragments of steel inflicted gaping wounds among nearly a hundred groupings in the same area.

The black-painted Fascist planes struck first at Getafe, a suburb, and then sped on to unleash ten more bombs over the heart of Madrid itself.

Spinning down from a great height, the bombs struck with amazing accuracy in the densely-thronged side-streets just off the Puerta del Sol—the "Times Square" of Madrid—and the Rastro "sea market" in the Calle Nuncio opposite the Apostolic Nuncio's palace.

How to Use the Voting Machines

A large number of citizens will be using the voting machines for the first time on Tuesday at the general election. First voters and those in districts throughout the county, who will be required to use voting machines for the first time, should acquaint themselves with the voting machines to insure that their votes will be registered according to their desires.

Instructions in brief on how to operate the machines are as follows: As you step into the voting booth, or enclosure, grasp the handle overhead of the curtain lever, swing it to the right as far as it will go and leave it there. This action closes the curtain about you and unlocks the machine so you may vote.

After pulling down the small pointers over the names of the candidates you wish to elect, leave them down (don't push them back up again); then swing the overhead handle of the curtain lever to the left as far as it will go, or until you hear a click, and leave it there. This movement will register your vote, and open the curtain for your exit.

The machine is arranged so that you cannot turn down more than the proper number of pointers for each office, therefore you need have no fear of spoiling your ballot by turning down too many pointers, as the machine will prevent you from turning down more than the proper number. There is no danger of anyone knowing how you vote, as the movement of the curtain lever returns the pointers to their unvoting position, before the curtain begins to open, and prepares the machine for the next voter.

"Houdini Party" at Hollywood Tonight

Hollywood, Oct. 31 (AP)—Ten years to the hour after Harry Houdini died, a group will gather tonight—Halloween—on a Hollywood hotel roof in a final effort to communicate with the spirit of the great magician.

They hope to hear his disembodied voice from 8:30 to 9 p. m. (P.S.T.)

The group will be composed equally of believers in psychic phenomena, spiritualists, scientists and agnostics. One Superior Court judge of Los Angeles will sit in the inner circle. It will assemble at the request of Houdini's wife, Mrs. Beatrice Houdini, his stage partner in life.

"Long before he died," Mrs. Houdini said, "we agreed that whoever should go first would try to return to the other. In his last hours, he said to me, 'Beatrice, I'll come to you somehow, even though I have to go through Hell.'"

"We agreed upon a message, phrased in code. It was known only to the two of us. The compact was to last ten years and no longer. After that period, the one of us still alive was to abandon hope either in the possibility of the survival of the dead, or their ability to communicate with the living. The message has never been received."

"The fact that tonight is Halloween is a coincidence. My husband died on Halloween ten years ago."

Swine growers in Duplin county (N. C.) purchased 77,000 pounds of western feeder pigs this season.

Hendricks Estate Sold to Brighams

A portion of the remaining original holdings of the Clarence A. Hendricks estate on the Hudson river, town of Ulster, has been conveyed to Brigham Brothers by Clarence A. Hendricks and Elizabeth M. Hendricks his wife. This property originally comprised several hundred acres and was a Crown grant to the Hendricks family prior to 1700. It was subsequently developed as a brickyard and the original settlers also derived a livelihood and other fish which were abundant in the Hudson river at that time.

About 1700 a substantial stone residence was erected on the premises and later about 1800 when this residence was destroyed another stone and brick structure was erected. Five generations of the Hendricks family had resided on the premises. The property now conveyed to the Brigham Brothers rounds out their holdings giving them more extensive river frontage and extending back to route 32.

The sale was consummated through the agency of Nathaniel B. Gross, real estate broker with offices at 277 Fair street.

More May Join In Maritime Strike

fourth," the association said. Many of its 302 mills in Washington and Oregon were reported closing down. Marine labor officials here, claiming the support of Atlantic and Gulf Unions, watched closely for developments there, but made no immediate comment when New York seamen decided to await action by the International Seamen's Union.

"Sit down" strikes of seamen in New York prevented sailing of the American Trader for London. Six other vessels were held in docks by owners in anticipation of similar trouble.

A. J. McCarthy, chairman of the New York Shipping Association, said longshoremen would not join any sympathy walkout because of agreements recently concluded between the I. L. A., and the shippers.

Pickets At New Orleans

Pickets armed with sticks patrolled sections of the New Orleans waterfront. There one group of marine workers, comprising seamen and longshoremen struck against the Luckenbach Gulf Steamship Co., and Swayne and Hoyt Ltd.

T. J. Darcy, spokesman for the strikers, said 1,400 longshoremen holding contracts with other companies would not be affected. Baltimore, Md., Mobile, Ala., and Houston, Tex., were enmeshed in the strike movement last night.

Union officials in Baltimore said seamen of ships docked there had voted to strike for demands which included control of hiring halls, a focal issue on the west coast. Western employers want continuance of joint operation. It was estimated 600 men would be involved in the Maryland port.

Gilbert Mers, preside of the Maritime Federation of the Gulf, said at Mobile 100 seamen and 350 longshoremen had voted to strike at noon. The "rank and file" group of seamen voted in Houston to strike in support of west coast sailors. Wilbur Dickey, business agent for the Houston local of the International Seamen's Union, termed them an "outlaw" group.

No Change Until Monday

Officials of both sides, declining to be quoted, expressed belief the situation would remain status quo until Monday. Then the United States maritime commission is due to reopen an investigation of the coast's long troubled waterfronts.

"I'm going to try to get them together before then," said Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady, who led in bringing peace out of the 1934 conflict, but vainly strove to prevent the present one.

Employers acceded to a maritime commission request to continue operations under old agreements pending the commission investigation but unions called the strike when the shippers refused certain "fundamental demands" the unions said must be included in any new contracts.

At Anchorage, Alaska, J. T. Cunningham, acting general manager of the government-owned Alaska railroad, announced preparations for suspending freight and passenger service during the strike because of the shutdown in marine commerce.

In Honolulu, sailing today of the palatial Matson liner Lurline was cancelled, leaving 300 passengers booked for Hawaii and Oriental ports. Postal authorities transferred her 6,000 mail pouches to foreign ships with crews not affected by the walk-out.

Offshore California shippers, who with other employer groups, announced they had no plans for attempting to resume operations, charged the unions with "repudiating" efforts of the federal government to settle difficulties without a strike.

Replying to a request from Secretary Perkins for resumption of negotiations, offshore shippers pointed out they had agreed to a request to continue under old agreements.

The strike, embracing all the outset seven major maritime unions, resulted after weeks of fruitless negotiations for renewal of contracts made after the 1934 walkout.

The Kingston Daily Freeman

Your Vote Places You in the Position of a Judge — in a Court of Justice!

I rest my case: and appeal directly to YOU.

I accepted the nomination for the office of District Attorney of Ulster County in the belief and on the conviction that I could count on the support of every free and independent voter, and every fair-minded voter, on the premise that I could give to them, in their own individual interests, personally, a better conduct of the affairs of the office.

I submit that the office of District Attorney must be absolutely free of partisan politics and political pressure and influence—that it frequently deals with the name, the honor, the reputation of a citizen, and no one knows whose name will be next involved and in need, perhaps, of vigorous protection.

I further submit that the office of District Attorney is not the gift of any political party; nor is it the property of any politician, but rather an important non-partisan fort wherein are preserved and guarded—and from which emanates attack on any act or threat against our peace or our laws.

I stand firm on your right as an individual citizen for an unbiased, unprejudiced, humane administration of that office. I make this a matter of record—no man, of any party, should be retained in the office of District Attorney of this or any other county for more than 16 years.

For 21 years I have practiced law in this city and county and have fought hard and successfully before our courts for what I believed to be right. Never before have you seen my name on a ballot.

I appeal to you. Your vote will determine whether your District Attorney's office shall remain in the possession of a political party or placed in the hands of a man who seeks to dedicate it to your service. Your vote places you in the position of a judge in a court of justice.

Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Milady's Waist Fitted For Regal Evening

By ADELAIDE KERR.

New York (AP)—A regal evening mode, inspired by the crowning of two British kings, leads the pageant of 1936-37 night-time fashions.

With an eye to the approaching coronation of King Edward VIII, designers have evolved gowns which recall the day when his grandfather Edward VII, mounted England's throne.

Figures Important.

Figures are items of first importance as they were in Lily Langtry's day. Busts are often defined and waists are slender. Decolletes are low cut to reveal "marble shoulders." Heads are small, neat and bejeweled. Coiffures sweep back from the face and are curled close to the head, lending an air of grace and dignity which offers a decided contrast to the old, long, loosely-curved cut.

Accessories are more important than ever while make-up is natural. There is a hint of both Edwardian and Victorian modes in some of the gowns designed for this winter's galas. Failles and satins, sometimes brocaded with shimmering metal threads, make gowns with puffed sleeves, low-cut decolletes and skirts which sweep to the floor.

Fashion hints of another European empire—that of Napoleon and Josephine—appear in gowns designed with molded bust, high waist and slender skirt whose fullness sweeps out behind. There are also a number of slim, princess gowns with waistlines which tend to mount.

The Spanish revolution is reflected in full skirted frocks of white faille and red velvet worn with black veils, draped in a manner reminiscent of the mantilla.

Evening Wraps Fitted, Too.

Black and white are well to the forefront of this winter's evening parade. After them come a whole scale of rich colors.

Trimming accents lend richness. Painted leather, sequins and colored embroidery, colored bands and flowers add to the effectiveness of this winter's designs.

Evening wraps also reflect the elegance of Edwardian days. Wool, tweeds and broadcloths make the smartest ones, cut on long fitted redingote lines with revers richly embroidered in sequins and stones, offering dramatic contrast.

FITTED GOWN
Bronze gold treelark silk lame makes a glamorous gown for winter parties. It is cut on a slender fitted line with a high molded bust faintly reminiscent of the Empire mode and finished with two long back draperies.

FITTED COAT

Creamy wool makes one of the season's most beautiful evening wraps. It is cut with exaggerated shoulders, a very fitted waistline and sweeping back fullness in the skirt. A silver fox collar cut like bold revers in front finishes it.

AND SWEEPING SKIRT FOR THE PARTIES

The silken elegance of old Edwardian days returns with the evening fashions of 1936-1937. Here is a gown indicative of the trend, designed of rich garnet red silk taffeta with a deep decollete, a covered shoulderline and a sweeping skirt studded with sequins circles surrounded by fluting.

REPLACE TREES AND SHRUBS THIS FALL, USE PLANT FOOD

By The Master Gardener

This has been a disastrous summer for the gardener, and you are indeed a fortunate person if you haven't at least several replacements to make in your garden.

Do it this fall! There are many reasons why fall is superior to spring for planting trees and shrubbery, and here are some of them:

The nursery stock will be freshly dug and packed.

You will have a much longer planting season than in the spring, when every day's delay counts against you.

The plants will be established in the ground in spring, and growth will start normally and gradually, resulting in a stronger, healthier plant.

Plant this fall and all the fuss and bother will be over with now; then when spring comes you can look forward to enjoyment of your shrubs and trees from the very first days of spring.

Be sure, however, that you prepare the soil thoroughly. Dig deeply enough; set the tree or shrub in a

Chrysanthemum Still is the Queen of Autumn Flowers

When Victoria was queen of England, the chrysanthemum was queen of autumn flowers, and amid all the changes that have come about in other fields, there have been none to shake the "mum's" unquestioned leadership in the floral kingdom.

The first record who attired herself to witness the first college football game wore a huge chrysanthemum. No other item of the coed's attire has survived "modernization" except the "mum." It is still there, more important than ever, with the new autumn mode depending so completely upon flowers for the costume's color accent.

In seeking the beginning of the chrysanthemum's reign, we may go back 2,000 years in Japan. It has been systematically bred for that period, and like the tulip, its garden forms are so ancient, no one knows from what wild flower they originated.

Chrysanthemum shows were held in Japan 2,000 years ago. They are held now all over the world each autumn. It might seem that in so many centuries the flower had been developed to the limit of its powers, but new varieties are still being produced.

Few flower families have responded so willingly to the plant breeder's efforts, producing new colors and forms. Still, now the variety is so great as to be bewildering. Japanese breeders have originated the most varieties, but in the last century English and American breeders have run a close second.

The history of the chrysanthemum illustrates what horticulturists often say: that there is no fashion in flowers, but only in the way they are used. Chrysanthemums have changed very little in a hundred years.

Even in their use, many things remain unchanged. A Thanksgiving year.

service would not seem right to many of us without a basket of huge mums to decorate the church. They play the same role in autumn weddings.

In recent years appreciation of the small flowered type has grown, however, and their sale is now far greater than for the larger flowers.

As material for personal wear, as well as decorative arrangements, it is difficult to equal them. They offer a rich variety of autumn colors—bronzes, yellows, gold buff, maroon.

Chrysanthemums keep remarkably well, and excel as pot plants, in which form millions are grown each

Paint Changes Shape Of Room

Color Variation On Same Walls In Vogue.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES

(Prepared by McCall's Magazine For The Kingston Daily Freeman)

Who said all the walls of a room have to be the same color?

Anyone would think it was in the constitution or something, the way nobody ever thinks of putting anything but the same paper or paint on all four walls. But now, not only has somebody thought of it, but many people are doing it. And it is very surprising—and very nice!

It is all because of the modern mode. We're all going modern very quickly, and modern bedroom furniture is outgrowing all the other styles. Modern furniture is so simple and without doodads, that the temptation has been very strong to "do something to the walls."

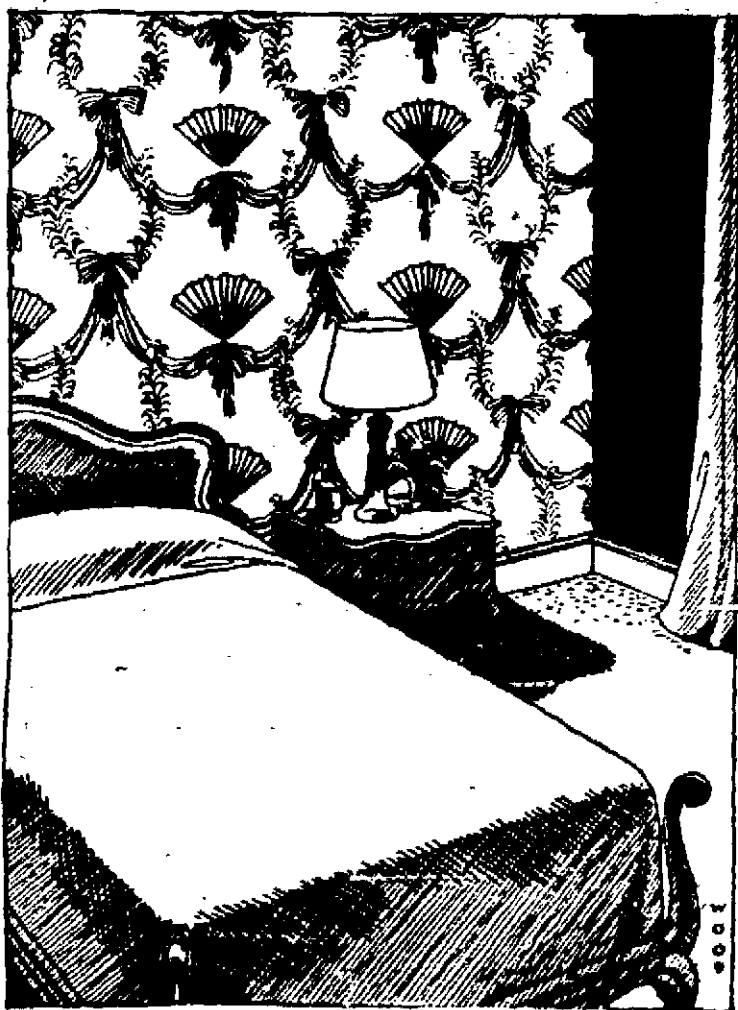

Do you want to change the shape of a room—from square to long? Paint two walls white and two dark, say in burgundy or dark blue. By using different colors on the walls you can eliminate all sense of shadows and can make walls "recede" or "advance."

One wall pale gray, one white, the third yellow and the fourth all windows—that is the scheme of one interesting room seen recently.

A bedroom can be cleverly "partitioned" with paint and paper. One has the walls painted a pale dusty pink, except for about 50 inches along two sides of one corner, which is done with a modern paper of a charming fan motif on pink. The corner makes almost a separate dressing room for the dressing table.

In another bedroom, the modern maple bed is in a niche papered with a highly figured paper—the rest of the walls are painted pale powder blue, the background color of the paper.

Photo murals are exciting new wall decorations—they come in gray, blue, coral or sepi. In one bedroom, there is a mural of white African daisies, enlarged gigantically, on a blue ground; the two opposite walls are done in horizontally striped blue and silver paper.

cities which can be obtained in time to plant before the ground freezes. A few from Japan do not arrive until November as a rule. Second, plant the late arriving bulbs in deep pots and keep them in a cold frame through the winter. In the spring they can be transplanted to the garden without disturbing the roots.

May flowering tulips are the finest of their race. They are taller, larger and more varied in color than the earlier classes. The varieties most suited to garden use are commonly classified as Darwin, cottage, lavender, hybridum, nizette, Rembrandt

This is one of the season's loveliest hand-knits. It is the ideal golf dress, the campus dress, the dress to wear at the country club, or for the Sunday morning walk. The novel yoke and pockets are very interesting, and the collar is the type flattering to all. For the best results, make it of the finest sport sweater. The knitting directions may be obtained at once by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to Editor Woman's Page, Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, N. Y.

Every gardener likes to have flowers in bloom constantly from the beginning to the end of the garden season.

But all too few begin as soon as they might, and thus the most delightful season of the whole year, the early spring when we are hungry for the sight of flowers, is the most neglected of all. At this time a few of the minor bulbs, the first spring flowers to blossom, bring pleasure out of all proportion to their size and number, because they have no rivals.

Spinach should be sown late, but before the ground freezes. It is the intended that the seed shall germinate this fall; but that it shall lie in the ground through the winter and sprout in the first favorable weather of spring.

A crop too seldom grown by amateurs is winter or perennial onions. These are grown from sets which if planted now will give green onions for the table before the ground can be opened for spring planting.

PLANT THE HARDY LILIES AS SOON AS RECEIVED

Hardy lilies are best planted in the fall. Bulbs are dormant now and must spend the winter either in the ground or in cold storage. They are better off in the ground.

If your soil is a good sandy loam it should be suitable for most of the hardy lilies. They do best in a light soil perhaps because of its superior drainage. Most of the lilies dislike wet soil and will show immediately the effects of standing water. A good loam, rich in leaf mold, is good for them.

Do not treat the soil to make it acid, as you would for rhododendrons; and do not lime it. A neutral soil is best. Manure should not be used except as a top dressing, and then it must be a year or more old and well rotted. Soil may be enriched by using a balanced plant food thoroughly mixed or applied as a top dressing after planting.

A location where the base of the plant is in light shade is a good one for most lilies. While they dislike standing water, they also dislike drying out; and a summer mulch of peat moss or rotted leaves is appreciated. Depth of planting is important. Lilium candidum, canadense, marginatum and superbum should be planted only 3 or 4 inches deep; but the others should go in about four times the diameter of the bulb, usually from 8 to 10 inches. Some growers plant on a layer of sand and cover the bulb with sand; some turn the bulb on its side so that the water will not catch in the bulb scales, but there is no proof that either is necessary. If field mice eat bulbs in your garden, drop in a few flakes of naphthalene after you have partly filled the hole where the bulb is planted.

Yesterday we heard a preacher say that Halloween pranks were several thousand years old. He called attention to the fact that Samson carried off the gates of Gaza one Halloween night, much to the disgust of the men of the city.

Madame—Good heavens! On the afternoon of my bridge party!

In New York "sunshine" taxis are in service and, according to the advertisements, they are very popular vehicles. The top simply slides back to permit the passengers to get the benefit of the sun. In New York city there may be a big demand for sunshine.

Halloween!

In the days of late October, when the leaves come drifting down, when the morning's frost grows thicker, and the foliage turns brown.

All the air is cool and bracing, and the apple crop is in. While the pumpkins, too, are gathered, and the corn is in the bin. Then the face of nature changes, till we see no trace of green, and 'tis time for happy children to prepare for Halloween.

Visions come of fun and frolics, party, masquerade, and ball. Games, with merry shouts, and music, ringing through each room and hall.

Pictures strange of cats and goblins, queerest sights that youth recall. Witches fierce, and jack-o-lanterns, soon will frighten one and all. Thoughts then turn to piteous feasting, tables set with things to eat.

While the viands rich and tasty, fill a list that's most complete. Dream of dreams, of doughnuts, crisp, pitchers full of cider sweet. Stacks of gingerbread that's tasty, pumpkin pie that's hard to beat. Then, perhaps some strange suggestion comes, of pranks that some will play.

On the ones whose dispositions have gone wrong and far astray. Oh ye ancient celebration, full of mystery and truth, welcome with thy games and feasting, welcome with thy pranks of youth.

Cortez, the Spanish conqueror, brought the first long horned cattle to North America. When the railroad came the long horns did not fit well into cattle cars and other breeds were developed.

Sports Shoes From The Tyrol

Something new and different in sports shoes is inspired by the footwear of the Tyrolean mountaineer. It is designed by Lanz of brown unfinished calf, which has a suede-like texture, and is fashioned with a heavy leather welt sole and accented by a red and green leather lacing and bright gold buttons. The brown wool truck is worn with a plaid scarf and a little hat tipped with a bright feather.

DON'T LET BAD SPEECH STOP SOCIAL CONTACTS

Many girls won't make new acquaintances among young men because they are afraid the way they pronounce words will be criticized or laughed at.

They realize they make a favorable or unfavorable impression on a new acquaintance by what they say and the way they say it. "Wajido lantini?" might be from some outlandish foreign language if one did not know it was meant for "What did you do last night?" Yet thousands of otherwise charming girls talk just this way. It is called mispronouncing words and syllables.

Quick, Easy Way To Correct Faults

A girl is not considered cultivated and charming if she is not careful with her speech. On the other hand, girls who are very careful of their speech give the impression of having had a college education, even though they didn't complete their high-school studies.

Correct English leads sparkle to conversations, but glaring mistakes, inadequate expressions and slovenly speech habits dull the effect of what is said. So do little slips of adding syllables, as "athalenti" for "athletic"—transposing sounds, as "irrelevant" for "irrelevant." (Don't expressive English builds self-confidence and poise, adding greatly to personal charm.

Our new 64-page booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, is a clear-cut system for correcting all of your errors. Within an hour you will learn how to pronounce many words you have often stumbled over.

At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "Dodsworth." The very human study of a successful business man spurred on by his wife into one last fling at travel, fun and frivolity becomes worthwhile and intensely interesting drama on the Broadway screen with Walter Huston and Ruth Chatterton co-starred in this dramatization of the Sinclair Lewis novel. The play ferrets out the pitfalls of matrimony, shows up the grasping tendencies of both men and women and proves that advancing age and romance are more or less alien in the scheme of things. It is one of the finest and most cultured pictures of the year and Mr. Huston and Miss Chatterton are ably assisted by such players as David Niven, Mary Astor and Paul Lukas. A Samuel Goldwyn production, directed by William Wyler.

Kingston: "My Man Godfrey." Gay, sparkling, satirical and witty, this tale of a broken down man who becomes the butler for a beautiful woman and teaches her the niceties of living is one of the hit comedies of the year. The production is crowded with laughs, good advice on matters social and the joint starring efforts of William Powell and Carole Lombard lends zest and enjoyment to a fine story and finer direction. A talented group of featured players includes Alice Brady, Jean Dixon, Gail Patrick, Alan Mowbray and Eugene Pallette. Here is swell entertainment, recommended to everybody who seeks a play filled with humor and enjoyable satire. A Universal picture directed by Gregory LaCava.

Orpheum: "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Country Beyond." Earl Derr Bigger's famous mystery yarn of the young writer who goes to a lonely inn in quiet Ohio to get tangled up in any number of mysterious happenings comes to the Orpheum screen with Gene Raymond, Margaret Callahan, Eric Blore, Grant Mitchell and Moroni Olsen in the main roles. "The Country Beyond" is a story of the far north with Rochelle Hudson and Paul Kelly featured.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.
Kingston: Same.
Orpheum: "The Shakedown." Exposing one of the many raising rackets current in these United States today, the feature at the Orpheum is pretty gutsy entertainment with gunplay, murder and intrigue all working together with dire results. The fading Lew Ayres and the rising Joan Perry are co-starred in this Columbia Picture. David Selman directed. "Law of 48's" is the other attraction with Big Boy Williams in the starring role. Selected shorts complete the Sunday program.

NORWEGIAN TRAGEDY NOT FIRST OF KIND

Other Avalanches Have Taken Heavy Toll of Lives.

Washington, D. C.—With a terrifying roar, an avalanche plunged from rocky cliffs nearly a mile high into the still waters of Loen lake, western Norway, recently. The wave that followed was reported to be as high as the Capitol building at Washington. It took a toll of more than 70 lives and nearly wiped out two villages near the head of the lake.

"Loen lake, an extension of a series of waterways leading inland from Nord Fjord, is no stranger to disaster," says the National Geographic society. "Many inhabitants of the region recall a similar tragedy in 1903, when 61 persons lost their lives."

"In 1934 nearly 50 persons were drowned by giant waves set up in the same manner at Tafford, a few miles northeast of Loen lake."

"Loen lake is famed among travelers and anglers as one of the most beautiful of many long, narrow, stone-ringed fingers of water along the rugged, mountainous coastline of western Norway. A barrier of rock separates it from the main fjord and the sea, raising its level to a height of some 289 feet above sea level."

Spectacular Falls

"Visitors and fishermen generally approach the lake by boat, landing at the village of Loen, at the head of Invidfjord. From there to Lake Loen they follow a modern road, paralleling a dashing stream that serves as an outlet of the lake."

"Meadows, lush and green, along the shore soon give way to a strip of firs and beeches. Above them soar sheer rocky heights, topped by snow-clad peaks and glaciers. The scenery is grand and impressive, and scores of beetling precipices, dashing waterfalls, and islets seem to pass in review as the lake steamer plows along, leaving rippling furrows on the pale green surface of the water."

The lake itself is about ten miles long. Except for a few knife-like rapids, it is entirely surrounded by huge precipices nearly 5,000 feet high, with mountain peaks towering another 1,000 to 1,500 feet above the cliffs. Between many of the peaks huge glaciers descend, but all of them are transformed into waterfalls before they reach the lake. When clouds hang low in the region these falls seem to drop out of the mist.

"One of the most spectacular sights in western Norway is a glacier which periodically breaks off from the brow of a cliff on the western shore of the lake. In summer large masses of ice are attached, plunging a sheer 3,900 feet with a rumble like thunder, to dash to pieces among the rocks at the water's edge. Often accumulated ice fragments are spread out in a great fan-shaped pile below."

"Most impressive of the lake's rock walls is the steep, serrated face of Ravnefjeld, source of the avalanches that caused both the 1905 and recent disasters."

Seldom See Sun

"Near the southeast end of the lake, this stern 6,575-foot cliff faces three of the principal hamlets of the region and a number of scattered gaards, or homesteads, whose inhabitants sometimes do not see the sun at all during the winter months."

"Scars of the 1905 avalanche, when a stupendous crag detached itself and plunged into the lake, can still be seen. This slide was recalled by a memorial stone on a low rock by the lake."

"The villages of Noesdal and Boedal, which were reported virtually destroyed by the recent wave, hug the shore across the lake from the Ravnefjeld. They again felt the full force of the giant waves set up by the tons of rock hurled into the water. Many of the houses had been moved up the shore since the 1905 catastrophe, but still not far enough."

"The principal industries of the region are fishing and catering to summer visitors. The villages are ideal headquarters for mountain climbers who wish guides for the ascent of the many peaks and glaciers above the lake. Trout and salmon are abundant."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Election arguments boiled in the boardrooms today but the stock market was unable to work up any great amount of steam on either the buying or selling sides.

Traders favored a few farm implements, merchandising, copper and specialty issues for gains of fractions to a point or so and neglected many of the leaders. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

While business news was still pleasing to recovery proponents, brokers found some of their customers were rather timid about extending themselves pending the outcome of Tuesday's voting.

West coast labor troubles were also a fly in the generally optimistic ointment, not because of any immediate effect on stocks but from the standpoint of possible later repercussions.

Shares on the upside throughout most of the session included J. I.
Case, Deere, International Harvester,
Kroger Grocery, Safeway Stores,
Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward,
Kennebott, Miami Copper, Andes
Copper, Johns-Manville, Calumet &
Hecla, du Pont, Westinghouse, Goodyear, American Telephone, International Telephone, St. Joseph Lead,
Western Union, Park Utah and Douglas Aircraft.

U. S. Steel lost about a point at its worst as did Santa Fe, Louisville,
Nashville and Youngstown Sheet &
Tube. Backward also were Bethlehem, Republic Steel, General Motors,
Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, North American, American Water Works,
Fajardo Sugar, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific.

Explorers Plan to Sail
Pacific in Twin Canoes

Honolulu.—Two daring French explorers, Capt. Eric Bischoff and Joseph Tabibout, have completed the first of two seagoing canoes with which they expect to explore the Pacific for several years.

The two hulls are patterned after ancient Polynesian canoes. The first one has been brought down to Wahiki beach from the woods where it was hewed out and it is expected that the second one will be completed shortly.

Once the two hulls are in the water, they will be joined by a platform, masts and Chinese sails erected, and in about six weeks thereafter the two adventurers will leave on an exploring cruise of the Pacific in the same manner which the early Polynesians employed.

Their first expected port will be Clipperton island, a French possession off the Mexican coast, where they will do research work for the French Geographic society.

From there they expect to head for the Marquesas and other islands of the South Pacific. They will make a detailed study of winds, currents and native traditions in an effort to determine whether the Polynesians reached their present island homes from Asia or from America.

Coronation Chair

This ancient coronation chair in which King Edward VIII will be crowned next May is kept in the chapel of St. Edward the Confessor in Westminster Abbey. Embedded beneath the seat is the Stone of Scone brought from Scotland by Edward I in 1277 and at last shown the great two-handed sword and shield of Edward III, dating from the fourteenth century.

END OF RECORD SEA CROSSING

Capt. James A. Mollison, noted British flier, is shown in front of his monoplane at Croydon airfield, England, after completing the fastest eastward crossing of the Atlantic. His flight from Newfoundland was 13 hours, 18 minutes. The picture was transmitted by radio from London. (Associated Press Photo)
